Therapy

Therapy can be offered by many different types of mental health providers, such as clinical social workers/therapists, licensed professional counselors, and psychologists.

- Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (CBT) has been well studied and proven to be effective at treating many different mental health challenges in children and teens.

The best way to find a therapist in your area is to use www.psychologytoday.com

Step 1: Search for therapists based on your zip code

Step 2: Filter the results based on your child's age and insurance

Step 3: Look for someone who provides Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (CBT)

- Some therapists may offer virtual appointments if that is more convenient for your family.

Patients who have Medicaid can also call their county's mental health access center for further assistance:
